

Long Point man fined for building an illegal seawall

April 27, 2018 07:24 am

A Long Point man is out $3000 after building an illegal seawall.

In March of last year, Ministry staff were working in Long Point when a man approached them to explain his idea to build this wall for erosion control.

The staff told the man he would need a work permit.

Staff returned to the area a few weeks later and discovered a row of armor stone had been put on the shoreline extending into the waters of Lake Erie.

This website uses cookies to ensure you get the best experience on your website.

Learn More

I Accept

Latest

Privacy Policy | Terms Of Service

Copyright © 2018. All rights reserved.

POWERED BY SoCast Digital growth made easy.

This website uses cookies to ensure you get the best experience on your website.

Learn More